

Starter's Guide to Your Dutch Language Course A1.2

Welcome to our Dutch language program! This guide provides all the information you need to get started and make the most of your learning experience with us.

General

Language Levels

Our courses are aligned with the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR). Each level requires a different amount of practice hours, increasing as you progress. To reach A1 level, you need approximately 90 hours of practice. In class, we cover 40 hours, while the remaining ± 50 hours are dedicated to self-study. This includes homework and exposure to the language in other forms, such as: watching TV shows, talking with others, actively thinking in Dutch, texting in WhatsApp, engaging with our Instagram posts, etc.

With a weekly amount of 2 hours of class time and 2 hours of homework, you will have 4 hours of practice each week. At this pace, it would take around 20 weeks to reach A1 level.

Since this is quite a commitment, we've divided our courses into manageable modules of 2-3 months. All classes are 1 hour long, with an average of 1 hour of homework between sessions. This schedule allows you to comfortably absorb the material and consistently progress towards your language goal. (A tailored schedule can be discussed.)

Course Structure

You are going to follow the A1.2 course, which consists of 18 hours of classes. This guides you to a solid A1 level. After completing this course, you can seamlessly continue with the A2.1 course and be on your way to A2 proficiency.

For better comprehension, we divided the vocabulary in smaller bits and entered it for you in Quizlet. Quizlet is a great tool to help you master vocabulary through flashcards and interactive games. It is fun and so easy to incorporate into your daily routine. The free version has a daily limit, which should be enough.
